STATE ROLE PARAMOUNT IN SUCCESS OF CSR

Synergy of purpose was the motto at Caring Jharkhand, a conclave organised by The Telegraph in partnership with the state government

Theme: CSR IN HEALTH: ADOPTING HOSPITALS OR SERVICES?

In the chair: Dr B.L. Sherwal, director, Rajendra Institute of Medical Sciences

Speakers:

- Dr Sanjay Kumar, medical director of Bhagwan Mahavir Medica Superspecialty Hospital, Ranchi
- Amitav Chatterjee, cluster head of Meditrina Hospital, Jamshedpur
- Dr Rajesh Kumar, director of Rani Hospital, Ranchi
- Preeti Sehgal, company secretary and chief of communications (CSR) of Jusco, Jamshedpur
- S. Nagasubramanian, head, corporate communications and CSR of RSB Transmission, Jamshedpur

House opinion: CSR in the health sector is not necessarily about organising health camps or distributing medicines to the needy. It can actually bridge the gap between demand and supply through government facilities. In Jharkhand, there are ample opportunities for the private sector to step in. Among them are prevention of hypothermia (among newborns), trauma relief and addressing the needs of various tribal communities. More areas can be targeted after conducting proper assessment of need and working out sustainable projects. Like the CSR council, the state government needs to set up a consortium of various stake-holders in the health sector to identify key problems so that a strategic approach can be initiated to resolve them

Best idea: "Let there be more tripartite 'private-private-public' partnerships in the health sector, like people-friendly initiatives like Armour ambulance service. This is the best example of how a big corporate can support a smaller one in executing an initiative monitored by the government to reach out to people meeting accidents on road. It is a successful model that can work wonders," says Dr Sanjay Kumar of Medica, Ranchi

Theme: GOVERNMENT & CSR: THE GOVERNMENT'S TAKE ON CORPORATE PARTICIPATION ON VARIOUS VERTICALS/ DEPARTMENTS LIKE SPORTS, EDUCATION & ENVIRONMENT

In the chair: Satendra Singh, secretary, sports, art-culture and youth affairs

Speakers:

- Abhijit Ghosh, CMD, Heavy Engineering Corporation (HEC)
- Dr Vijay Kumar Mishra, head of critical care at Medica Hospital, Ranchi
- Anindya Sinha, regional director of CMPDI
- Dr Rohit Lal, director of Lal's Hospital and Research Centre

House opinion: Jharkhand is the first state in the country to form a CSR council that aims to channel CSR activities in a sustainable manner so that the required benefits reach the needy people. Also, Jharkhand State Sports Promotion Society (JSSPS), formed to set up the country's first sports university, is also a path breaker in the area of CSR as Central Coalfields (CCL) has agreed to run the facility. The corporate sector is usually very good at analysing the need of a particular locality. HEC, for instance, has been training tribal boys and girls in skill development and nursing to make them employable. This also ties in with the overall vision of the Centre. CSR should be used to usher in change at the grassroots, but ultimately, CSR can only act as a catalyst but cannot bring in change unless the government comes forward.

Best idea: "The government should make the infrastructure and hand over the same for providing useful service to the community," says Satendra Singh, the state secretary of sports, art-culture and youth affairs

Theme: SMALL CHANGES THAT CAN GO A LONG WAY IN MAKING A TRANSFORMATION

In the chair: A.K. Singh, director, Life Education and Development Support

Speakers

- Ganesh Reddy, secretary of Citizens Foundation, Ranchi
- Rajkumar Gope, policy advocacy manager of Ekjut, Chakradharpur
- Anup Hore, state manager of Plan India, Jharkhand
- Savita Sengar, VC of Rai University, Jharkhand
- SP Agarwal, pro chancellor of Sai Nath University, Ranchi
- Fazlul Haque Krishnan, project coordinator of Save the Children, Jharkhand

House opinion: Making a positive contribution to society is the essence of CSR. Non-profits of the state have already set their sights on the right approach. Some of their moves have been extremely effective, not exactly trying to "pull out the sinking Titanic" but more like changing the course of a large ship to save many lives. For instance, 'participatory learning and action (PLA)' cycle of Ekjut, through which infant mortality was brought down, 'For You' of Citizen's Foundation that distributes donated articles of daily use to the needy and Dream Scholarship of Rai University for vocational training of girls are worthy examples to follow. Similarly, the CSR contribution of Reliance Communications helped LEADS to prop up 600 senior adolescents who are now working in various establishments. But, the need to protect children and prevent atrocities against them is an issue of paramount importance that needs to be taken up through CSR.

Best idea: "Child protection is an important issue that is yet to come under CSR. Once funds are rolled out to protect children, many other issues would start to get resolved on their own," believes Anup Hore of Plan India, Jharkhand

Sinha clears air on Atal Bhavan

VISHVENDU JAIPURIAR

Hazaribagh, Aug. 11: Former external affairs minister Yashwant Sinha today for the first time broke his silence over a muted controversy surrounding his registering the BJP office in Hazaribagh town in his own name by clarifying he did it to save the party property and not from any vested interest.

Sinha, now 78, had registered Atal Bhavan on posh Sadanand Road in his own name in May this year, to which party workers in June shot off letters to Prime Minister Narendra Modi and party president Amit Shah, but did not make the matter public.

Today, Sinha explained why he did so. "Yes, I transferred this building in my name as it was the only option to save this property," he said. About party workers writing to Modi and Shah on the issue, he said they "got misguided without knowing the full facts".

"Party workers sent their letters (to Modi and Shah) on June 11 but I wrote a letter to chief minister Raghubar Das on June 3 itself requesting him to ensure that this Hazaribagh office was taken by the same Trust running the party's Ranchi office," he said.

As former district party president Bhaiya Banke Bihari treated the building like his own for years, Sinha said he had to step in. "The property was in his name. This May, I convinced him to transfer it in my name. My intention was to save the party property. I don't want to use it," Sinha, whose son Jayant is the present-day Hazaribagh MP and Union minister of state for civil aviation, said.

Taking a dig at his detractors, he added: "This property won't make me a Tata or a Birla."

A BJP leader who did not want to come on record said in 2008, a 10 decimal-plot was purchased to construct Atal Bhavan on the name of then district party president Bihari, who treated it like his personal property even after leaving the president's post in 2009.

Sinha apparently gave his own funds to get the two-storey building made, his contribution being the maximum, present-day district party president Tunnu Gope admitted on record.

Rs 27000cr roadmap

Mega plan for state power

OUR SPECIAL CORRESPONDENT

Ranchi, Aug. 11: Chief minister Raghubar Das today held a key meeting with senior energy officials to discuss how to beef up power transmission and distribution across the state for which Rs 27,000 crore would be pumped in.

The meeting comes in the wake of the Das government's recent announcement to provide power for all by 2019.

During the meeting, energy department additional chief secretary R.K. Shrivastava gave the mega roadmap to achieve the target of transmission and distribution with the Rs 27,000 crore budget.

A source privy to the meeting said while Rs 13,000 crore was needed to revamp transmission, Rs 14,000 crore would strengthen distribution. The state may need help from funding agencies like World Bank, Nabard, among others, for the mammoth plan.

Chaired by chief minister Das, the afternoon meeting at Project Building was attended by chief secretary Rajbala Verma, Shrivastava, chief minister's principal secretary Sanjay Kumar, CM's secretary Sunil Kumar Barnwal, JUVNL managing director Rahul Kumar Purwar, among others.

The chief minister also directed energy department officials to finish underground cabling in urban hubs Ranchi, Dhanbad, Jamshedpur, Bokaro and Deoghar by March 2018.

During the meeting it emerged that 774 villages of a targeted 19,010 villages were yet to be electrified under Deen Dayal Upadhyaya Gram Jyoti Yojana .

For work on transmission lines in forests, Das suggested deputing a retired senior forest official as nodal officer to help expedite clearances.

Energy department's Shrivastava said Jharkhand Urja Sancharan Nigam Ltd finished projects worth Rs 110 crore while Power Grid Corporation of India Ltd set up grids worth Rs 1,183 crore. Grid substation work is over in Dumka, Chaibasa, Madhupur, Manoharpur, Chatra, Simdega and Tamar, and underway in Patratu, Latehar, Lohardaga, Govindpur, Ramchandrapur, Mango and Jaina More (Bokaro).
